If you do not understand English, we recommend seeking a professional translator who can translate our terms and conditions into your language for you. Alternatively, you can use Google Translate or any other translation tool to understand the terms and conditions before you sign and date them.

All students are required to attend the college induction day. Failure to attend will be considered as a class absence.

If you are still waiting for your visa and are not able to attend your induction day in person, you can participate in the induction day online via Zoom. We will treat it as a regular induction and conduct the class online for you. Once you receive your visa, you can join us in person on campus. Failure to attend the college online induction will result in the student not being entitled to any refund if their visa is refused.

Attending the induction day online shows that the student is keen, serious about their studies, and has the intention to complete their course.

All refund dealings will be handled by the refund team, and students will only communicate via email regarding refunds. The admissions team or any other department will not handle refund inquiries. Students must send a refund application and wait for the college's response. The college will respond within 12 weeks. If students, parents, or agents send more than 5 emails within the 12-week period, write any abusive or inappropriate language, words, or sentences, the student will not be entitled to a refund.

refunds will be made within 12 weeks or more, unless further verifications and clarifications are required.

For example, if UKVI refused the visa because the documents were not genuine or if UKVI suspected that the documents were created by students/agents, etc., we will not process the refund until it is verified that the documents were not falsified. If the documents are verified as falsified, no refund will be issued.
